

Joe Germaine play. How good has Joe Germaine been this season?

Joe Germaine has been the one constant. Everyone always questioned, especially after Siaha Burley left, how was the offense going to perform? I was one of the few returners offensively and everyone questioned how it's going to be. I kind of put it in perspective as the Patriots – you know, they can funnel in different receivers, but they got their Tom Brady, they got their coach Bill Belichick, and they're going to win, they're going to put up numbers. And I feel the same with Joe Germaine and Coach [Danny] White. They've been together Joe Germaine's entire career. They know each other, they know what each other does well, and Joe goes out there and performs. He's been consistent week in and week out, despite losses, despite off field things. He's our captain, he's a guy we kind of rally around, and we know he'll be that constant guy. He's never up high and he's never down low – he's a constant and I think that's what you need in a quarterback.

Three Utah wide receivers rank in the top six in receiving yards this season, including you. Does your team have the best group of receivers in the AFL?

You know, I read from a few weeks ago, about another receiving core that states they were the best, etc. I'm not going to go out on a limb and run my mouth, but we've been kind of nicknamed out here in Utah, 'The Big Three.' We're the West Coast version of 'The Big Three' I guess. You know, I've never been on a receiving core where I'm the smallest receiver. I'm normally the biggest. You know, I'm 6'3", 210 and I'm the smallest receiver of the three. I think that's one of the bright spots. We've been able to go out there, and teams have a hard time matching up against us because we're three big targets. Maybe one game they'll try to shut down one guy, but the other two will step up. Consistently throughout the season, one of us three has been able to step up every week and make things happen. I think that's what's added to our success as a unit, as a receiver core, we know we got each other's back. If their gameplan is to shut down one guy, the other two are going to step up and make plans. It's just the way it's been all season.

Can you talk about the website, aaronrboone.com?

It was someone else that started it. It needs to be updated and if you make mention of it, then I'll get it updated here in the next day. But, that was actually made way back when I was in college. Because I moved around so much, it was an easy way for people to kind of follow my career. I grew up out in Utah, then I went to college in Kentucky and a lot of my games weren't on TV out here, so it was a way for people to kind of follow. It would have journal entries that I would write and whatever articles were written in newspapers, and pictures. And then from there, I went to the Cowboys and the Bears, the Panthers and Europe, and then Arena – Philadelphia, Kansas City and now Utah. I mean, it's a lot of places to go, but I make friends in each place I go, and it was just an easy access for friends and family to be able to kind of be able to follow my career. It just makes it kind of easier.

Do people ever confuse you with the baseball player Aaron Boone?

Yeah, I've definitely got it. I played college at Kentucky and it was right when he was played just 60 miles away in Cincinnati. So, yeah, I definitely got that a lot. I always joked, 'Yeah, I'm definitely not him. You see the car I drive compared to what he has?' They always ask me if I'm part of the Boone family from baseball. I'm like, 'I wish I had that kind of money, but no, I'm not.'

So are you happy he's retired now? Maybe that will end some of the confusion.

I think he's probably done, yeah.

On your site, it says you were in the movie We Are Marshall. What was that experience like?

Yeah, I had a chance to go down there. That was actually when I was with Kansas City. I went down there with Chris Sanders, quarterback, and we went down there and I had a blast. It was fun. I always wondered just how that kind of stuff works, how movies and all that functions. It was really cool just to experience it more than anything.

Was it strictly just a playing role? No speaking parts?

Yeah, I was actually, if you watch the credits, I'm considered a stunt man. There was only about eight of us that are actual stunt men because I did a couple high-risk stunts. At the time, I wasn't under contract with any team because I was a free agent. [Laughing] So I kind of put myself at risk. But, it was cool. I'm glad I did it.

Los Angeles WR Kevin Ingram was in Invincible and he had a speaking line. So is it safe to say that you're not on the Kevin Ingram acting level yet because you have yet to have a line in a movie?

No, I'm still not.

Still waiting on that one line huh?

[Laughing] You're right, I'm waiting on it. I tried to, in all group scenes, I tried to yell or something where you'd hear my voice, but it didn't work.

Maybe it's better you didn't have a line. Ingram said he never hears the end of it. People are always giving him a hard time and repeating his one line.

Speaking of movies...which actor would play you in a movie about your life?

A movie about my life, huh? I like, let's see, Brad Pitt...That's a really good question. Yeah, I'd throw Brad Pitt in there. Tell him to hit the weights for a couple months. [Laughing]

I understand you're from a large, football playing family?

I think it's kind of cool...My brother is actually on league exempt, he plays for the Raiders. And I have another brother who is also in the NFL, which is kind of unique. He's with the Saints. I'm hoping there's a chance we could one day all be back together, which would be really cool. They're both linemen, 6'6", 300 pound linemen.

There are five boys, five girls [in my family]. Like I said, both my other brothers played professional and my sister played college basketball and volleyball. I'm the runt. My sisters are all six feet or taller, my brothers are all 6'5" and taller, 300 pounds. So I don't know how I became a receiver, but I'm trying to make the most of it.

OFF THE NET is a weekly column where ArenaFootball.com sits down with a featured player or coach in the upcoming ESPN2 Game of the Week. The interview style column covers a variety of topics - both on and off the field - to give the fans a closer look at some of the league's top players.
